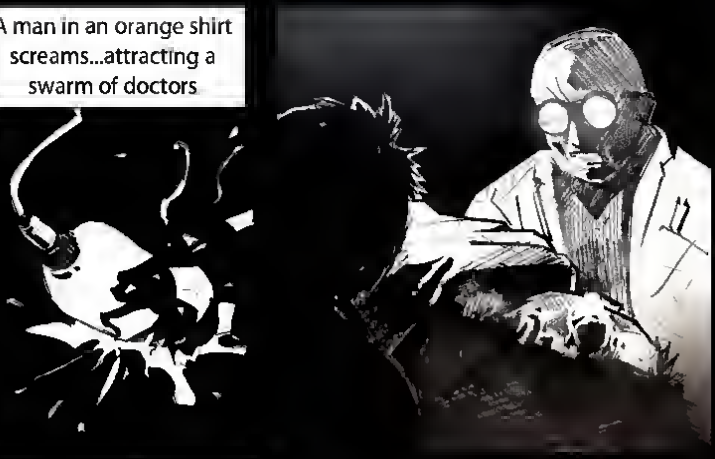
BEEP-
BEEP-
A man drench in blood is carried into the hospital on a stretcher.
His face is mangled beyond recognition and his blood continues to spew out like a fountain.
EMERGEN

A man in an orange shirt screams...attracting a swarm of doctors



Then some resident doctors scream causing a group of women within the vicinity to gasp and cover their mouths in fear.

A younger girl covered in blood wails as she tails the stretcher.

Such a wail instills fear into other women. They sympathize with her

Other spectators walk away from the young girl as though she's spreading infectious disease.

The mangled man is finally removed from the public's eyes.

When the nurse finally calms the young girl...

...everyone focuses back on the tv.

I inject the drugs as the doctor ordered.
The doctor cuts the man's throat to open the airway.
Things aren't looking good.
Blood spews everywhere...
...dying the entire room in red.
The doctors pretend like everything is good and orders me to put pressure on the wound.
Something sticky flows past my fingers
Warm.

Through the congealing blood I feel the man's pulse

The doctors operate more swiftly - desperately

And his pulse gradually weakens

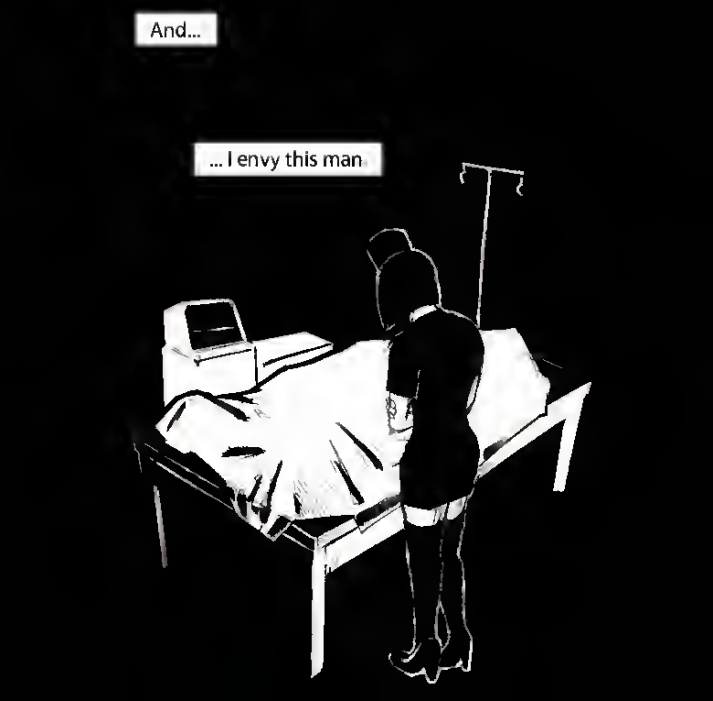
His vitals begin to dance

The man's face distorts from pain

I release the pressure on the wound

Blood gushes out through the wound again, but we all know too well that it doesn't matter anymore

His pulse slows and his blood gets colder.
I look at this man who's at peace, free from pain.
The young girl covered in blood fills the room with her cries.
On that signal, a white sheet is placed over the man's peaceful face.
NOOOOOOOOOO



And...
... I envy this man.
